

INDRA GROUP SIGNS AN ALLIANCE WITH INTERSOFT ELECTRONICS TO STRENGTHEN ITS POSITION IN THE EUROPEAN AIR DEFENCE MARKET

- Both companies will collaborate to provide more flexible and direct support to their clients in Europe, focusing on anti-drone systems and military radar segment.
- Indra and Intersoft Electronics are combining capabilities to seize emerging business opportunities in Europe and respond to the growing demand.

Madrid, 16 June 2025 – Indra Group has signed a collaboration agreement with the Belgian company Intersoft Electronics to strengthen its position in the European market for C-UAS systems and military radars, capitalizing on emerging business opportunities across the continent.

The CEO of Indra Group, José Vicente de los Mozos, and the CEO of Intersoft Electronics, Luc Switten, signed the agreement today at Indra's stand during the Paris Air Show, in a ceremony also attended by the Executive Chairman of Indra Group, Angel Escribano.

As part of the agreement, both companies will explore the possibility of relocating part of the production to Intersoft's Flemish manufacturing facility. This move would enable more agile and closer support to European customers, while also enhancing local presence and cooperation with the European industry.

Intersoft Electronics brings over forty years of experience in supplying technological components and providing maintenance and life cycle management services for radar systems to the Armed Forces of Belgium, the Netherlands, and other countries in Central and Northern Europe.

Indra is also one of the world's leading suppliers of radars and anti-drone systems, with proven capability to detect and neutralize UAV threats. Its systems are in operation with several nations and supported by cutting-edge radar technology. Indra has exported its radars to all five continents and has become a key provider for NATO and the most advanced armed forces in Europe.
